PART2

THE TREASURE ISLAND

As I rushed to Dr. Livesey's house, who was our family friend, made me comfortable and gave me something to eat. I told him all the story and showed him this piece of paper, which looked more like some kind of a map. He shared it with his friend Squire and after some discussions; they concluded that it's a map of a treasure. They decided to set sail to uncover the treasure. I accompanied them as a crew, while my mother took care of the Inn. To head the voyage, a number of men were hired including Long John Silver as the Ship's cook.

Along the journey, I slept inside a barrel and overheard Silver planning for a the mutiny against Dr. Livesey and Captain Squirel along with his many men. This made me very upset and in the meantime I heard the shouts of joy from men as we finally reached the island.
